Leuphana University of Lüneburg

The Leuphana University Lüneburg in Lüneburg, Germany, was founded in 1946 as a college of education and, since 2007, has offered a unique, Germany-wide, study and university model. It is designated as a 'foundation under public law'. The name Leuphana is derived from an ancient settlement on the Elbe River. (This was mentioned in the geographical world atlas by Ptolemy in the 2nd century.)

The Leuphana College concentrates its bachelor degree studies into eight departments and two teacher training courses. In 2008 a graduate college was opened that integrates master degree and doctorate programs. In addition there is a pan-departmental research center and a professional school for advanced study courses like business cooperation.

Housing:

The university offers accommodation in residence halls or in private apartments to exchange students. A cafeteria is also available on campus for meals.

Life in Lüneburg:

Travel on foot through the Old Town and take a walk in the city's history. In addition, the town attracts countless small shops in the pedestrian zone.

Enjoy the best in Lüneburg cafes, pubs and restaurants on the river, in the public squares and narrow streets of the medieval city center.

Lüneburg's cinema program "Scala" was awarded the 2007 Prize of the Federal State Minister for Culture. This film festival surpasses the competition in Berlin, Cologne, Munich and Hamburg.

With so many students in Lüneburg it also has a varied nightlife. Most pubs and bars are on the smelt, the old harbor, and on the Schroeder Street. However, all venues are close together.
